stantially in accord with the official text.

The real question is whether the Administration is going to accept the German version of the facts as to the sinking of the vessel. Germany maintains that the Arabic was sunk because the submarine commander thought the vessel was trying to ram the undersea boat. This is utterly at variance with the evidence of American survivors of the Arabic and from other quarters.

It presents a most embarrassing situation for the State Department and the Administration. Though officials apparently think there was no justification for the German version of the facts, it can hardly discard this version as not entitled to weight.

The State Department has yet made public no resume of the evidence it has gathered on the Arabic. It may do so later.

Ouestion of Indemnity.

The real question is whether the Administration is whether the Administration is going to accept the German was son the sink thing and that, in union style.

"As soon as it was pointed out to them, they saw the joke and became good soldiers.

"We haven't any recent figures, but here ape scores of thousands of union men in the British army."

"Are the union men worried about them, they saw the joke and became good soldiers.

"What core of thousands of union men in the British army."

"Not a bit of it. They say the fleet will take care of that part of it, but will take care of that part of it, but will take care of that part of it, but will take care of that part of it, but will take care of that part of it, but will take care of that part of it, but will take care of the last man, woman, and child if invasion comes."

"Why is the enlistment of working men not larger?"

"The British working men hay that England is doing enough as it is. They say that the world cannot expect England to do the fourth thing, on top of all the rest she has done and is doing."

Arabic Note Refuses Indemnity; Suggests

BERLIN. Sept. 10.—Refusing to acknowledge responsibility for the loss of American lives on the liner Arabic on August 19, but suggesting that any demand for indemnity be submitted to The Hague Tribunal, the German foreign office, in its note handed to American Ambassador Gerard, asserts that the torpedo attack was made under the impression that the submarine was about to be rammed. The text of the note follows:

Altered Her Course.

On August 19 a German submarine stopped the English steamer Dunsley about sixteen nautical miles south of Kinsale and was on the point of sinking the prize by gunfire after the crew had left the vessel. At this mocrew had left the vessel. At this moment the commander saw a large steamer making directly toward him. This steamer, which as developed later, was the Arabic. She was recognized as an enemy vessel, as she did not fly any flag and bore no neutral making. tral markings.

When she approached she altered her original course, but then again pointed directly toward the submarine. From this the commander became convinced that the steamer ramning him. In order to anticipate this attack he gave orders for the submarine to dive and fire a torpedo at the steamer. After firing, he convinced himself that the people on oard were being rescued in fifteen Planned An Attack.

According to his instructions, the commander was not allowed to attack the Arabic without warning and without saving the lives unless the ship attempted to escape or offered resistance. He was forced, however, to conclude from the attendant circumstances that the Arabic planned a violent attack on the submarine.

the submarine.

This conclusion is all the more obvious as he had been fired upon at a great distance in the Irish Sea on great distance in the Irish Sea on August 14—that is, a few days be-bore—by a large passenger steamer apparently belonging to the British Royal Mail Steam Packet Company, which he had neither attacked nor stopped.
The German government most deeply regrets that lives were lost through the action of the com-mander. It particularly expresses this regret to the Government of the United States on account of the death of Amerian citizens.

The German government is unable, however, to acknowledge any gation to grant indemnity in the matter, even if the commander should have been mistaken as to the aggressive intentions of the Arabic Suggests The Hague.

If it should prove to be the case that it is impossible for the German and American Governments to man and American Governments to reach a harmonious opinion on this point, the German government would be prepared to submit the difference of opinion, as being a question of international law, to The Hague Tribunal for arbitra-tion, pursuant to article 38 of The Hague Convention for the pacific settlement of international disputes. settlement of international disputes. In so doing, it assumes that, as a matter of course, the arbitral decision shall not be admitted to have the importance of a general decision on the permissibility or the con-verse under international law of German submarine warfare.

"Are the union men joining the army?"

"Indeed they are. I heard the other day of one regiment that was made up almost entirely of union men. They got their unionism and their soldiering mixed, and their captain had to make mixed, and their captain had to make a speech to them, in which he said: 'This regiment is no union.' The whole regiment had been passing resolutions

Question of Indemnity.

Not only is an embarrassing issue of fact presented, but the United States is asked to submit the question of indemnity for the loss of two American lives on the Arabic to The Hague for settler ment if no other harmonious adjustment can be reached.

The United States would be willing to arbitrate the amount of the indemnity, but whether it will arbitrate the question whether any indemnity should be paid is another matter.

Indications are that the Arabic controversy will stretch out through a considerable period of diplomatic correspondence. If this is the case, it will have a tendency to prevent acute trouble. The dragging out of the Arabic controversy will delay disposal of the indemnity in the controversy will delay disposal of the indemnity of the indemnity.

This punch is indicated by warnings in the British press, cabled here, that in the future the people must take the raids more seriously and must avoid danger not only from Zeppelin bombs but from falling shells from anti-air guns.

The Zeppelins evidently flew quite low as they passed over the Trafalgar Square district, the newspapers speaking of the great "spectacle."

The Zeppelins threw both explosive and incendiary bombs, the large list of casualities only being accounted for by the fact that explosives were hurled. The Dally Telegraph's statement that London firemen had an opportunity to show their efficiency, indicated that a number of buildings were fired.

The Berlin statement said that Norwich and Middlesborough, far to the northeast of London, were also attacked, confirming the dispatch that the same dirigible inconceivable that the same
